Civil service offers a lot of opportunities for the youngsters. Getting into the Civil services is a grueling task. The motivation to succeed must be very strong: for it is not an easy task by any measure to scale the stages of getting selected.

Learning offers a lot of new knowledge, challenge, new ways to look at an issue and new ways to deliver. So learning never exhausts the mind.

The pre-requisites to succeed in Civil services are Etiquettes, right aptitude, right attitude, communication skills, abundant knowledge, good language skills, good presentation skills, and analytical skills, very high level of intelligence and objectivity rather than brilliance in any particular subject.

Preparation for Civil services is nothing but what we are doing, seeing, studying and with whom we are reacting. Aptitude, attitude and communication skills are the criteria to test the candidate. Aptitude means to test whether the candidate has real or genuine interest to serve the society with the happiness. Attitude means to test general knowledge of particular group, society, division, set-up and world wherever we come across. Communication skills means how you communicate with others.

The syllabus covers a wide range of topics like world History, current affairs, Indian constitution, Geography, economic affairs, logical reasoning, mental ability etc. The Syllabus is quite extensive. It covers almost everything, whatever we have studied so far.

The candidates will be short listed after a long selection process involving an objective preliminary test. Out of 4 similar options one has to select the Right answer. Right answer is judged on the basis of selection of best Answer. A subjective mains were held Later, and the personal interview, the final stage. In the Main exam wherein, the candidate is expected to write elaborate answers in a relatively short period of time. So one who study, must study smartly .During Interview, candidates will face questions on the Topics of General Awareness. It is conducted to gauge the personality and adjudge whether they are suitable for responsibility that the Job entitles.

A host of qualities like patience and Knowledge are most essentials. Patience means how exactly you are acting and reacting to sustain the profession and also to understand the Situation. Knowledge is nothing but how consistent we are in putting up our thinking process.

“If you are a Failure in civil Services you are not a failure in life. But you are a successful man in God’s services.”

To become a successful person one should have an unsatisfied, a deepest desire and dreams.

Be happy and harmonious to sustain the profession and as well as relationship.

Pessimist converts an opportunity into calamities whereas an optimist converts a calamity into an opportunity.

So BE OPTIMISTIC ALWAYS.
